

Thomas E. Maxson Education, Training and Workforce Development Award

The Thomas E. Maxson Education, Training and Workforce Development Award was established in 1998 in memory of Dr. Thomas Maxson, a long-time supporter of continuing education and workforce development in the public health laboratory community. Each year this award is given to an APHL member who has made significant contributions to public health laboratory practice by creating, delivering or developing continuing education opportunities, programs, policies or practices for the laboratory community.

The Maxson Award depends on the generosity of APHL members to maintain it. If you would like to support this award, please send this form with a check or credit card payment to:
